MINING GOLD AND OTHER MINERALS

Eagle Metallic Company Conducting Extensive Mining Operations in Adams County, the Extent of which Few People Know.

Dr. M. Moriarty exhibited at this office on Wednesday a number of gold-pieces and quartz, which he received at the mine of the Eagle Metallic Company near Chambers on Wednesday. The recent discovery of gold has caused the members of the company to refuse a show of specimens by regular circulation.

The mine in Adams county apparently does not realize the extent of the work being done there. A short 300 feet deep has been sunk and large quantities of pure copper recovered. Quartz has also been secured and lately gold was discovered and mineral is being put on the market.

The company is now arranging to secure machinery to reduce the silicates of the minerals. It is believed that the mine has been in existence for some time, but it has been kept so secret that it has been the subject of much talk at the work shaft at the mine. A large hole in the deep shaft to the ground which it is planned to place a large shaft.

Adams county geologists have spent days in the mountains and have found that the minerals are exceptional. The discovery of the glittering material some time ago caused the people to be interested and was justified when the authorities proposed to open the mine. The mine has been secured in sufficient quantities to pay for the expense of placing it.

Feature Should Be Shaded.
Where there are no trees in the pasture which will furnish ample shade for the stock during the heated months of the summer some kind of shelter should be provided. If nothing else, there should be made of poles and brush or straw or soddy hay. A number of instances were reported during the last year where many head of cattle died from the heat, being fogged up in a similar attempt to give the shelter of a living patch of shade.

To Cure Horse Lice.
For lice on horses take half a pound of kerosene in two gallons of water and wash the horse twice, with an interval of two or three days between the applications.

outside world for his breadstuffs, meat and dairy products and for the grain and forage supplies needed for the few herds of hardy he does keep. In some sections of the cotton belt the force of the above caricature of rural life is already being realized, and the "better way" is being inaugurated. What is true of the south is true, in less degree, of the east, west and north. Of New York and Massachusetts, of Iowa and Minnesota, of Georgia and Florida. This doctrine of agricultural salvation needs preaching in season and out of season from every platform and in every newspaper and magazine in the country. It is the only real and the only successful one. It is the only one that will be for our own generation and those to follow.
